EDITORS' MESSAGES

The world is a staggeringly complex place, and we have come to a point in history where the world is so connected that lives all over the globe are interconnected with the invisible threads of globalisation. This is in especial for Hong Kong, a city renowned to be Asia's World City. This is why it is ever more important for us to see community in a broader sense.

Currently in Hong Kong, there are approximately 3,000 Africans living in Hong Kong. Albeit not a large number, the group adds further dynamic to the city and influences the place in unseen ways. In this issue of Habour Lights, we explore on the theme of Africa. We are honoured to be able to interview Mr. Innocent Mutanga, asylum seeker from Zimbabwe, who is also an advocate of social harmony across races and ethnicities in Hong Kong. Mr. Mutanga is presently an analyst in Goldman Sach and the co-founder of the platform the Wandering Voice and Chief of the Africa Centre Hong Kong. The sharing was very insightful and stimulating, giving us perspective and shedding light to what life is like for the other one percent of people in Hong Kong.

MESSAGE FROM

National President
Senator Maric Cheng

In 2020, it is a remarkable year to JCI Hong Kong as we are celebrating 70th Anniversary. It is our golden time to re-connect with our long-time friends and partners, and embark on the next decade of creating positive changes to our community.

Since the start of JCI movement in 1915, our founder Henry Giessenbier envisaged an organization, we are more connected with more access to information than ever before. Technology is transforming the way we work, create and communicate.

The " I" of JCI, is "International", is one of the most favorable elements to our members. We are delighted that we have already engaged 12 National Organizations participating in a new platform named "SDG Pioneer", to connect our JCI members all around the world to discuss and encourage members to develop more impactful projects and make good friends in JCI, build up network, and explore the cooperation in JC projects and business. Let's nurture more leaders with global perspectives to achieve more extraordinary things.

As COVID-19 continues to spread, the global impact to our community also continues to evolve at an unprecedented speed. Our first concern is the health and wellbeing of our members and associates who have been impacted around the world. We look forward to having cooperation with other JCI members to fight for the virus.

The outlook of Hong Kong economy is still clouded by uncertainties brought by the China-US trade war, the social incidents and the COVID-19 epidemic. Hong Kong's economy is now facing the gravest challenge in decades. Many enterprises and citizens have made a contribution to safeguard Hong Kong. It is a clear testimony to Hongkongers' can-do spirit amid difficulties. With Hongkongers' determination to adapt to changes and the courage in forging ahead, we are confident that Hong Kong can definitely ride out the difficulties.

Please take this opportunity to "Connect" with fellow like-minded members and partners all around the world, share your experiences and spark up potential collaborations.

I wish you all the best, let's continue the good deed and work through the hard time together. Be Better Hong Kong • JCI Arm-In-Arm.

BEYOND BORDERS—How Innocent Mutanga Bridges the Gaps of Colour and Rebrands Blackness

Emanating confidence and charm, Innocent Mutanga is an affable man with a large grin on his face wherever he goes. Mutanga has the qualities of a person you would least associate with the brooding impressions of a refugee, but he was indeed the first asylum seeker to be granted the right to study in Hong Kong.

"If we have to rewrite the story of the blacks, we need to be in a place where the future is."—Innocent Mutanga

Mutanga first arrived in Hong Kong in 2013 after a string of events involving striking political complications in his homeland Zimbabwe. Outspoken on a wide range of topics, he was pressured and eventually kidnapped; prompting him to board on the first flight to Hong Kong. When asked about the reasons he chose Hong Kong, he spoke with certainty. "When I was in high school, I started thinking the future is shifting towards East Asia. I want to be wherever the change is going to be." He preferred opportunities of the developing regions rather than the well-established order of the West. "If we were to rewrite the story of the blacks, we need to be in a place where the future is." Mutanga aspires to be a part of the group to transform the impression people have on young Africans, and this became the recurring theme throughout his choices in life.

After settling in Hong Kong, Innocent's path was not in the least effortless. Upon arrival, Hong Kong government immediately confiscated his passport for four years. In Hong Kong, less than one per cent of asylum seekers see the substantiation of their non-refoulment claim by the government. During the period, he was not allowed to study, work or even volunteer until his paperwork had been approved. Mutanga spent two years auditing courses in the university before finally being granted the right to study. The experience, albeit troubling, did not discourage the young African. He told us he was prepared for the many hardships when he decided to go to Hong Kong, the only part that bothered him most was convincing others after arriving. "The most challenging part is definitely convincing people I am just as worthy as others. To convince other people I am also a human being." As an underdog in the society, Mutanga was met with a lot of setbacks and frustrations dealing with false pretensions and biases.

Dignity in Every Individual and Relationship

Currently in Hong Kong, there are around three thousand African expats living here, but still the prejudices run deep in the culture. Mutanga recounted an unpleasant experience in which he was shunned in the clinic once. At the time, he had an accident riding the bike that ended with a bleeding wound. The nurse in the clinic refused him of treatment or even the registration forms, insisting that he contacted the district social workers. Mutanga was baffled at the fact that despite being in a modern, civilized society; some people in Hong Kong still have the presumption that Africans are all uneducated illiterates that are asking for help.

"Dignity is very fragile; but most people don't realise how important it is." Mutanga believes that it is essential for Hong Kong people to maintain an open mind when communicating with minorities. Sometimes it may not be obvious for people, but it is tough for the one whose dignity is trampled upon without the inflictor even realising. He asserted the importance of trying to understand things in others' perspectives instead of just assuming their inferiority. We should all put effort into figuring out the other view to the same situation and avoid exploiting the relationship if we realise we have the upper hand in the power matrix. In order to really connect with others, we all have to look beyond the material level of things. This is also one of the reasons Mutanga co-founded the magazine The Wandering Voice and the Africa Center Hong Kong in Hong Kong.

"BRIDGE THE GAP"—Connecting and Sharing on Equal Footing

Putting his social network and ideals together, The Wandering Voice was kick started in 2017. Mutanga asserted that presently in Hong Kong, one of the biggest issues minorities and the weak are dealing with is the opportunity gap. It is important everyone is given the chance to be heard and move upwards in the social ladder. The social enterprise is dedicated to the marginalised communities of Hong Kong, with the noble aim to raise social mobility for the neglected minorities—the migrant workers, refugee or ethnic minorities. Since then, over 600 people have benefited from their Social Awareness Programs and members of the group have spoke about racial discrimination and social entrepreneurship at the UN and UNESCO. With an outlet for the minorities, the group hopes to improve lives and change the narrative of these little-known 10 percent.

At the start of 2019, Mutanga spearheaded a non-profit organization the Africa Center Hong Kong, a platform that promotes social harmony between the African and non-African communities. He stressed that every individual has something to offer, going well beyond the stereotypical victim position that the black is usually framed to be in.

It is a deep-rooted prejudice that Africans are refugees living in slumps dressed in rags, but the fact is many Africans are beyond that, and there are talents everywhere. It is deeply unfair to associate the entire group with one single stereotype. Hong Kong prides itself to be an international hub, but it is disappointing how Africans in oftentimes are still pigeonholed with the singular quality of being people in need. In part skewed by the media's portrayal, Mutanga feels like the entire black community is painted as one picture; and when that happens, Africans are no longer treated or valued as individuals but judged and condemned by stigma placed on by other black people. "Talented Africans should not be consumed or only associated with charity; the community should see that we have something to offer in exchange instead of just charity," Mutanga commented.

In light of the existing issues, Africa Center Hong Kong attempts to empower Africans and provide a spot for people from all walks to gather. The social enterprise hosts monthly events including networking lunch, African Literature Book Club meetings, Afro Talks on matters concerning Africa or Africa-China relations, and many others; inviting people of all ethnicities to the functions. Above all, Mutanga hopes to "rebrand the Black", to build the trust and image of Africans in Hong Kong, that the group is as much self sufficient as any other racial group.

Lead, Connect and Achieve—A Lesson for Leaders

In another light, despite the numerous inconvenience Africans in Hong Kong are faced with; there are also perks to being the underdogs. It is precisely because the group is always treated as the dark horse, they learn to appreciate the value of things in a different way and see opportunities nobody else sees. The group prides themselves on discovering ways to anticipate projects in the most unlikely of ways. Seeing the intrinsic value of things is just as important in seeing the true value of people. Mutanga stressed that this is especially crucial for leaders; "A good leader should be able to appreciate value for what it is, in terms of what's worth doing and how to prioritize, instead of just going with the norms. Always stay true to your own beliefs." Determination is key, people could move mountains with just enough persistence.

Another key attribute for a good leader would be change management. With an Anthropology studies background, Mutanga told us there are lessons to be learnt through Charles Darwin's famous quote: It is not the strongest of the species that survives, but the most adaptable ones. Hong Kong and the world are currently going through a number of uncertainties; the catastrophe with the COVID-19 virus, political unrest and other dilemmas. In this era of crisis, it is essential for the leaders to acknowledge and adapt to changes. With modern technology and globalization, the world is increasingly interconnected. The invisible thread of globalization has sewn together the world in ways you would not expect, and whether leaders like it or not, the world is very much integrated. The only question would be how to leverage the good and bad of the connectedness. Mutanga remarked that precisely because of this, connecting and understanding the values is increasingly important in modern society. We need support from all sides to make the world a better place for all to live in.

Steering the Wheel to a Better Future

Innocent Mutanga's life journey has been a testament to possibilities. When asked of future plans, he expressed interest in venture capital. "The emphasis is on expansion; I want to apply the same model of venture capital onto international development within Africa. Private capital is what Africa really needs as the way to improve the community rather than simply aid." He hopes for the day he would return to his homeland of Zimbabwe and help build and improve the place from within. It has been seven years since restarting his life in Hong Kong, but Mutanga is just gaining momentum and there is so much to await in the years to come.

Final Remarks

It has come to a point in time where the world is an interconnected network of people, our lives are all intertwined with one another. Innocent Mutanga ended the interview with a reminder for all of us to rethink, reflect, and reconsider ourselves in the face of people unlike us. Simply being in a position with more resources is no grounds for complacency. He advised young people to look deeper and beyond before jumping into quick conclusions. It is normal to use existing labels to identify with people and ourselves, but at the end of the day, people are more than just one label. We define who we are and stereotypes should not confine the way you see people.

Post Script from Author— Seeing through Different Lens

Meeting with joyful and lively Innocent Mutanga, one would not have thought of the things he went through. His life story is full of twists and turns, but he as a person does not fail to impress. He is definitely a prime example for how everyone of us is carrying around an unseen history, and that we should never judge or jump into conclusions without knowing the contexts. There is always more to the story than we know of.

Innocent Mutanga is a dreamer but also a keen and passionate doer. I think we can all learn a thing or two from his positive attitude even in the face of adversity.

JCI Interview with PRESIDENT SENATOR ITAI MANYERE

My role this year as JCI President 2020 is

- To BRING STABILITY to the organization.
- To INSPIRE CONFIDENCE in members.
- To ENCOURAGE MEMBERS to create positive impact and to identify the internal capacity that they have.

Mr. Itai Manyere, JCI President 2020, comes from Harare, Zimbabwe. He studied IT at Masvingo Polytechnic. He is the CEO of Blue Dot Inc. and Managing Consultant at BlueDOT MOBILE, and was the 2014 JCI Zimbabwe President.

Q: As the world President of JCI, your term of office is one year. It may be a long or short period of time, depending on how you view it. Within your term of office, how would you create an impact that is sustainable? Given the limitation of your term of office, how would you ensure that the impact you created would be sustainable?

A: One year is a good period for one to lead. What it does is to allow you to step in, do a little but leave a mark for others. Lay eggs and perhaps hedge them. My role this year as JCI President is to bring stability to the organization. 2019 is a different kind of year for the organization. There was a lot of reorganization and recalibrations. 2020 is a chance for us to move the organization to a stable place. And I believe that stability is suitability for the future. To inspire confidence in members, that indeed we are a positive looking organization that spurs the world into positive changes. That is pretty much what I would do as 2020 JCI President. But what's added is to encourage members to create positive impacts, carrying out projects that promote sustainable development goals, and to make them more believed into themselves and identify the internal capacity that they have.

Q: Mr. President, I am sure that you are more familiar with the history of JCI than most of us here. JCI was founded 105 years ago. How do you see the needs of the generation nowadays as opposed to that of the generation back in 20 or more years ago? How have their needs been changing?

A: Yes, their needs have been changing. Now we have an increase in the use of technology. What it does is that it provides more opportunities for collaboration across the world, but at the same time what it does is it also works against the progress of the human race because people may use it to coordinate things that are counter-productive, and things that threaten human security. So we find ourselves in a place to have young people utilizing technology for social goods but not necessarily for things that actually move us backward as a human race. So we still have a lot of work to do.

Q: How do you perceive yourself as a model for young people in the world?

A: Erm...Number one, in the room, probably someone looks up to me simply because of the title but I always want to be the one who leads without a title. I want to be able to connect and to influence. I want to be the one who can convince even if the title is taken away, and let's take in the capacity probably that I have and the opportunity that I am given to learn from you. Then we can also impact each other. There are a lot of things that you can learn from each other in the room. I would like to see more young people step out and lead because of the capacity and the inner drive that they have as young active citizens. That's my dream. I want to be that kind of person. Without the title, take as much as you can off me and also I can learn as much as I can from my fellow teammates and members across the world.

Q: Mr. President, you are the local president of your country in 2014 so you led at a young age. What are the challenges for young people to lead a chapter because at your young age, you may have less experience than others? How did you motivate your members to be leaders and move forward in their JC journey?

A: I believe each and everyone has got a reason why they stepped out to lead. Number one, let it be seen as it works with members of the local organization, that your heart is at the right place. That you are there to serve and lead the local organization with any initiatives that you have. You got to carry your vision. What is important as you lead as a local president is that normally you get a lot of pressure when you say I want to do so many things in order to show others what you are capable of doing. Let's not let the pressure be on you but to spread the pressure among your work members. Also, as you lead, you get to use the team that you lead with.

WHAT IS JCI SENATE

In 1952 at the seventh JCI World Congress, the JCI Senate was formed to officially recognize JCI members who displayed exemplary dedication to the JCI Mission. The JCI Senate is just one more way that JCI members around the world can give back and financially assist positive changes around the world.

JCI Island - O! Love Tour 2020

"Some of the world's biggest challenges can be solved by some of the world's smallest communities. The moment you inject information, education, and an entrepreneurial spark in a community, it gets empowered enough to inspire, build, and uplift itself." said by Sharad Sagar, a social entrepreneur from India.

Sharing the same beliefs as Sharad Sagar, JCI Island has been dedicated its continuous efforts to analyze the community needs, develop sustainable solutions and take concrete actions for achieving sustainable solutions.

Since 2014, O! Love Tour has been leading and connecting with our strategic partners to realise the dreams of 120+ singleton elderlies who have no overseas travelling experience in their lifetimes. Each singleton elderly will be paired up with our student helper in a 3-day-2-night trip to Taipei.

To create more powerful impact, we have engaged passionate and committed student helpers in this meaningful project. With proper training provided, they can be very powerful to create sustainable impact in promoting value of love and care to the society and creating a harmonious environment of all generations in Hong Kong in the long run.

Due to the outbreak of COVID-19 in 2020, Hong Kong is experiencing difficult times. Our singleton elderlies are socially and economically disadvantaged that need to be concerned. With JC Spirits in mind, JCI Island will continue to collaborate with different stakeholders to refine our project plan. Let's join hands to create positive changes.

JCI HONG KONG JAYCEETTES 香港女青年商會

"To Impact" is to share love and care by truly understanding the core issue.

The COVID-19 virus caused damages socially and emotionally. Responding to the situation of the shortage of protection materials, JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes formed a supporting group from early February, in hope of bringing impacts to our society.

In the first stage of the project, Jayceettes created and distributed a survey through Jayceettes Cohorts – four houses gathering senior member, full member and prospective member. Out of expectation, despite social status or income level, 56% of our member did not have sufficient masks (some members had less than 10). Based on the survey results, we swiftly shifted our project target audience, from donating masks to outside parties to our own members – that was Phase 2 of the project. By reaching out to over 100 members, we successfully distributed masks to over 40 members on 10 February.

After balancing the needs of our members, the project stepped into Phase 3 in late February. We partnered with CelebA in reaching out 21 elderly centres for material distribution. With our members' hard work, we further received donations and sponsors from members and non-members. we welcome more donation of materials or cash for Phase 4 to benefit more needy.

「傳」心抗疫

全球新型冠狀病毒疫情持續蔓延，需接受檢疫的人士亦日益增長。生活突如其來的變化，以及對自身或親友健康狀況的擔憂，也讓不少隔離人士飽受不少精神壓力。

有見及此，海港青年商會堅守積極鼓勵青年人為社會帶來正面改變，持續建立讓各位共同創建更美好社會的平台，早前就與社會福利署攜手合作，召集了超過50名青商會友親手為接受檢疫人士製作約1,000份心意卡及草苗型按摩器小禮物，並透過社署安排由2月底開始送到各區檢疫中心，包括麥理浩徑及北潭涌隔離人士，為他們送上溫暖和祝福。

Noticing and worrying about young people's addiction to paying for online games, we launch a new project called "Game or Gambling" this year. We will circulate the questionnaires in Hongkong, Zhuhai, Taiwan and Japan, collecting answers from 1000 people aged from 18-40. We aim to arouse public's attention to the addiction and will propose methods for parents and teenagers to treat it properly. These will correspond to SDG goals 11,12 and 17.

Caring about the elderly who have no method to get enough masks in the rage of COVID-19, we initiated a special campaign for mask donation on January 30th. We got quick responses from local members and raised international concerns ( we got donation and support from JCI members from Japan, Malaysia, Indonesia, USA). We ended up collecting over 14,000 pieces of masks and donated to more than 4 organizations, benefiting the elderly living in the north district.

Love of the Earth: Love the Neighbor

JCI Sha Tin always listens to the community. Our future leaders always want to realize the dream of our youth. We launched Love of the Earth: Love the Neighbor to address the community needs. In recent months, the community has been paying more attention to social contacts and challenging the social distance between youth service providers (e.g. young social workers) and youth service receivers (e.g. teenagers). JCI Sha Tin is well aware of this issue and linked up Key Opinion Leader (KOL) and production house to provide online resources and share their experience with youth service providers. We would like to bridge the gap by equipping youth service providers with more up-to-date skills in reaching their target.

Moreover, recently the dream in Hong Kong Community is simply having basic protection to defeat the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak. We see the need for those who have inadequate hygienic and protective products and have difficulty to afford. JCI Sha Tin members and friends were working together to repack the hand sanitizer into smaller and more portable hand sanitizer in order to encourage people particularly the elderly and the low-income group to get out of their houses and re-join the community as soon as possible.

We visited several community centers such as Evangelical Free Church of China - Hong Fook Church Bradbury Community Health Development Centre, Sage Wong Wha San Memorial Neighbourhood Elderly Centre and Hong Kong Sheng Kung Hui Tai Wo Neighbourhood Elderly Centre and distributed some protective products including but not limited to masks and hand sanitizer. We also partnered with Sha Tin District Community Fund and together we helped in delivering caring packs to people in Sha Tin district. In this Love of the Earth: Love the Neighbor project, we target to serve more than 1000 neighbors including households and individuals around Sha Tin district.

INTERVIEW WITH JCIHK MEMBERS

Interview with JCI Growth and Development Committee Chairperson and 2018 National President Senator Ronald Kan

Q: We know that you attended 2018 Africa and Middle East Conference. Unlike ASPAC, it is uncommon for members of JCI Hong Kong. Would you briefly introduce to us what AMEC is about? Any differences and similarities with ASPAC?

A: AMEC is one of the four area conferences in JCI. It is also called CAMO because the Africa and Middle East in French is Afrique et Moyen-Orient. As a JCI Hong Kong National President in 2018, I have attended four area conferences and gone through the Grand Slam. In view of the program arrangement, AMEC is similar to other area conferences. However, participants of AMEC not only come from Africa and the Middle East but also from Europe because of the close proximity and direct flights. The number of participants is less than ASPAC. People could have a deeper dialog on various topics. In view of training workshops, participants of AMEC care about what is happening in the JCI world. Many attended the JCI Strategic Planning Committee workshop held in 2018 AMEC.

Q: You were JCI Hong Kong National President in 2018. Have you ever thought of attending AMEC before 2018? Why?

A: When I was planning to be the JCI Hong Kong National President in 2017, I had the idea of attending AMEC. It was a good chance to promote JCI Hong Kong and build a strong bonding with members from other countries.

Q: What was your most memorable thing(s) at AMEC? Would you recommend members of JCI Hong Kong to attend it?

A: In AMEC, some people come from French-speaking countries while some come from English-speaking countries. Language is the barrier for them to communicate. I recommend JCI Hong Kong members who understand some French to attend it so that they can fully immerse into the conference.

Q: Have you ever seen any projects in JCI Africa and the Middle East that have an impact in the society?

A: There was a memorable project called "I AM AFRICA". Not only does it have good promotion but it also has a special meaning to enhance the bonding of JCI members in the region.

Q: As a global and active citizen, what can we do to have an impact in both Hong Kong, Africa and the Middle East?

A: Although the average earning index in Hong Kong is higher than Africa, Africa comes higher in the happy index. Africans enjoy their country culture and while we have a strong pressure from work. Enjoying life is a big topic that we can learn from them.

Q: This year, the JCI Hong Kong slogan is "Lead, Connect, Achieve", would you share your experience on how JCI members can lead in their expertise, connect other parties and lead the society?

A: Members in HK are used to planning ahead for a project, however, facing the changing society, we need to be more flexible to apply our expertise on the latest social issues. When we work with other NGOs on SDG goals, we could set up more common goals to ensure a win-win situation. It can ensure their ownership and thus make achievements together.

Interview with JCI Bauhinia Member Natalie Wong

The Great Migration in Africa has always been one of the most spectacular wildlife phenomena on planet earth and a once in a life event. Every year in Kenya, over two million animals of various species would travel across in search of lush grazing grounds and water. In the year 2019, Natalie travelled to Kenya for two weeks to get a glimpse of the magnificent herds crossing the imposing barrier of the vast land. She witnessed the galloping swarms of zebras and giraffes, the preying eyes of hyenas and lions, the unforgiving gaze of vultures, and many more. Natalie described the place as boundless and perpetual, the fields stretch as far as the eyes could see; a direct contrast to what we have in Hong Kong. There are no skyscrapers in the region, but the basic infrastructure such as bridges and buildings are still sufficient. The place was a developing hustle, technology and smartphones are commonly used. The locals are all welcoming and friendly people, which is definitely the icing to the cake.

In 2020, the unexpected widespread of COVID-19 poses challenges to different projects. Natalie from JCI Bauhinia who is the Community Development Director and chairlady of their flagship CD project "Circle Care"(同心圓) will continue to be adaptive to changes by using online promotion technique and social media to gain awareness and do deep dive studies to bring impact to the community. Natalie is blessful of her supportive organizing committee members. With a strong team, this year, they promote achieving daily " Me Time" among women in Hong Kong and across asia countries, ultimately supporting all rounded development of women in their personal and family capacity.
For more details of "Circle Care", please go to https://www.facebook.com/circlecarebjc/

Interview with JCI City Member Ringo Chan

Ringo Chan, who joined JCI City in 2019, is doing Shea butter business in West Africa. Back in 2017 Canada, Ringo and his friend came up with an idea of sourcing and producing Shea butter and exporting it to Guangzhou. In 2019, due to the policy changes, Ringo reformed his business to start a retail brand called "Purity Ranch".

Q: What challenges did you encounter in Africa?

A: Bad public security. There are armed forces everywhere. Gangs popped up and asked for money. They spoke French and I barely understood them. But now, I can speak tons of French foul language to scare the gangs away.

Q: What are the differences between doing business in HK and Africa ?

A: Integrity. In HK, there are laws to enforce people to abide their duties with contract. It does not work in West Africa. I was cheated for many times after paying to the people so I had to monitor the production line closely. I went back and forth between West Africa and HK very frequently. However, after working with my staff for a period of time, we built trust and my business started to run more smoothly. Africa is always a potential market with lots of raw materials. However, you have to be prepared to sacrifice before you can take.

Q: Have you ever seen any local projects in Africa that have impact in the society? Do Africa and HK share any common things that an active citizen can work on?
A: There are more Africa-related projects in HK than in Africa locally. In both places, there are quite a number of people who are actually in more pressing needs than we can see. We may take a step further to see a border picture behind different parties' interest and work on their needs strategically.

Q: What ways would you suggest the other JC members to lead in their expertise, connect other parties and achieve in the society?

A: Common vision. Gathering a group of people who share a common vision can lead, connect and achieve a new height.
