MESSAGE FROM

NATIONAL PRESIDENT

Mahatma Gandhi once said that "Be the change that you wish to see in the world." The world is rapidly changing, and the world has become smaller due to the lightening speed news. To keep up the change, what shall we do as a leader?

This year JCI released the 2019 - 2023 Strategic Plan and identified the world is changing fast. JCI Movement has been impacting the world for more than 100 years; we kept evolving from time to time. In the digital age, technology transforms the way we are living, the millennial urge for quick response and significant impact. Therefore JCI urges us to accelerate the transformation to embrace the next wave of change.

Recent years, JCI Hong Kong and 21 local chapters made use of the Active Citizen Framework. We examined the community needs, formulate a sustainable solution, and take actions to create a better society. Through this movement, we enable members to create different projects every year to respond to community needs timely.

As a worldwide leadership development youth organization, empowering youth leaders and preparing them to create impact is our mission. I believe that creating young leader provides a long-lasting and sustainable source to change the world. Because if everyone has a mindset of creating a better future, we can eventually have the everlasting peace.

Member of JCI Hong Kong, next year will be our 70th Anniversary. It is the time for everyone to review our past, evaluate works we have done and set off and start another amazing journey of being an active citizen.

Let's keep changing the world together and create a better future!

HOW PROFESSOR SUNG JAO-YIU, JOSEPH, SBS, JP SEES YOUNGSTERS, EDUCATION AND ENVIRONMENT

Professor SUNG Jao-yiu, Joseph, SBS, JP, former Vice-Chancellor of the Chinese University of Hong Kong, recently took up the role as the Chairman of Environmental Campaign Committee(ECC), combining his experience and expertise of education, medical science and taking actions to make a change to the environment in Hong Kong. To our surprise, Professor Sung said it all started from a misheard phone call...

Everyone is responsible for our Younger Generations

Professor Sung revealed that he lived a typical Hong Kong education track that he entered University for MBBS right after his secondary education, and furthered his studies into the medical field afterwards. Outsiders may see it as a smooth experience, but Professor himself sees it differently.

"We chose our specific expertise too soon" - Professor Joseph Sung

Professor Sung shared his experience when he was a PhD student that he could not join in his classmates' over-the-coffee conversation as he knew nothing about culture, economy nor history, but sickness and health. He mentioned that under our education system, we entered our profession too soon, resulting in lack of knowledge about anything outside the subject, just like a business student today would not know much about other areas like art or science.

Making the matter worse, with the over-focusing on examinations, students developed to be more towards utilitarianism. Student's focus were merely on examinations and grades, ignoring everything outside the syllabus. Professor Sung expressed his disappointment towards students, as some medical students often ask him whether the materials taught in class will be in the examination; with the future responsibility to save lives, students should learn not just for the grades on their transcript. We should reiterate the objective of education, and that should never be the score. "This may not be purely their fault, but certainly an issue we have to address."

Technology changed learning culture

Adding to utilitarianism, the technology era has made things going on a very different direction. The Internet may have made information more accessible, and connecting the world; the thirst and patience for in-depth knowledge may have been sacrificed. Prof Sung recalled that, when he was a student, he and his classmate would go to the library to search for information about a specific topic to study and have a deep understanding on the matter.

Sadly today, the access to information has become too convenient, within a matter of seconds, students could acquire information globally, resulting in an intellectual fast-food culture, meaning students no longer have the will to dig deeper for a well-established in-depth knowledge base. Adding to the algorithm we have on social media, people could only reach posts and news of similar stance or interests, pushing forward a more bipolar society.

Worse still, with everyone heads down on their phone, our interpersonal communication is gradually deteriorating. Professor Sung observed that younger generations are generally weaker at soft skills like social etiquette, presentation, etc. and reminded young people to develop our communication skillsets as these are essential for our lives, no matter for a romantic partner or a job.

Afterall, Professor Sung recommends us, to spare some time to jump out of the technology trap, and absorb views from people of all walks of life, to have a more objective judgement over issues, and a more meaningful face-to-face conversation with people.

"We need more than academic achievements" - Professor Joseph Sung

The current DSE exam contributes to much stress to students, with the understanding that boys physiologically developed slightly slower than girls during puberty, the current timeline for the exam have put boys at a slight disadvantage; and using this single exam as the mere tool to decide their future career and fate, is simply pitiful.

Professor Sung recommends that our education could put more heed to physical education. We see students running around soccer fields in other countries, but in Hong Kong, most physical education is taken place indoors or in a very restricted area. He believes that sports help much on students' personal development be it persistence, determination, discipline and how we face challenged. Especially after the 70s and 80s when the local economy developed well, kids are raised in a protected environment and have fewer chance to explore the world and feel defeated or face difficulties. They therefore became fragile and not willing to accept failure, and sometimes leading to emotional problems. Hence, Adversity Quotient is definitely something we could work on.

Today, with so much uncertainty in Hong Kong, Professor Sung commented, "It's all understandable, there's a lot of hardship young people are facing." He believes that, in a long run, to make Hong Kong a better place for our future generation, we need to strengthen the education on history. Despite our political views, we need in-depth study about our culture history to understand more about our own culture. Sadly though, under the current system, Modern Chinese history has became only electives, and many students chose to avoid due to the grades.

Small Actions, Different World

Prof Sung has many memorable moments as vice chancellor of Chinese University Hong Kong, recalling the one that he is most satisfied - Setting up ICARE Programme.

"Let's look around and be more romantic." - Professor Joseph Sung

The above-mentioned concerns on students' over-emphasis on academic results and money has rooted in Professor Sung's mind, and he deeply believes that University life should be more all-round and romantic (He meant the romance of appreciating the beauty of the world, yet students intentionally misinterpret as romantic relationship). Therefore he proposed the program to create an atmosphere for students to appreciate the non-materialistic part of the world, like art, calligraphy and literature, and promoted the idea to more people, where ICARE, is the Acronym of

I - Integrity and Moral Development
C - Creativity and Intellectual Development
A - Appreciation of Life and Aesthetic Development
R - Relationships and Social Development
E - Energy and Wellness

Many different activities were held in campus, Professor Sung was personally involved in the calligraphy section. He emphasised that, with just a small change of thoughts to be less materialistic, we could see the world in a very different way.

This programme has been running until today and has grown to be spread to different universities even schools out of Hong Kong.

For the Environment, For Ourselves

Professor Sung was nominated as the Chairman of ECC, and it all started from a misheard phone call. Professor Sung supported the ECC before as Chairperson of the final adjudication panel of one of their flagship programmes, Hong Kong

Awards for Environmental Excellence, during which green achievements of different scales, from small projects like eco-tanks in Primary school to major environmental engineering infrastructure in Hong Kong Airport, were showcased. And when he received the call from the Secretary for the Environment, he thought it was the same invitation and agreed, yet it was very different, and he is on the position today.

"Good Environment means good health" - Professor Joseph Sung

Now, Professor Sung admitted that this accident was in fact a good move. With his knowledge in the medical field, he promotes the importance of environment to our health. "People don't really care about Global Environmental Issues as they feel that the impacts are so far away from them". Yes, most of the time, the environmentalists warn us with figures or impacts about the next decade or even generation. And people naturally would not care as much.

Therefore, Professor Sung aims to deliver the message of "Environment directly affects your health" like air pollution may cause more lung cancer, the micro plastic beads in water may enter the food chain in oysters, fish or seafood and pose danger to our health; and noise pollution affects our mental health significantly. He believes that, by doing so the public will feel the environmental crisis more relatable to themselves and be more motivated to do more work on environmental protection. Thus, one of the upcoming action point of ECC is to work with RTHK to produce a 10-episode series on "Environment and Health" to deliver the message that our environment connects closely to our body, i.e. If environment is good, say the water, and air quality is good, our health will be much benefited.

Again, Small Actions, Different World

Hong Kong currently has a higher municipal solid waste per capita disposal rate when comparing to other regions nearby like Singapore, Taiwan or Japan, and the main obstacle of promoting Eco-actions are that Hong Kong people generally feel that environment protection is the job of big corporates or the government, and felt that their contribution is generally negligible.

Professor Sung, however, quoted a recent ECC Campaign as an example to prove them wrong. In November last year, the ECC launched the "Plastic-free Takeaway, Use Reusable Tableware" Campaign which connected 3 major fast-food chains to promote using less disposable plastic tableware. When a customer said no to plastic, he/she would receive a stamp. After collecting six stamps, he/she could redeem a set of reusable cutlery or a drink. Professor Sung was skeptical with the effectiveness at first, but with the positive response in the first phase, the second phase was re-run in June this year with nearly 700 eateries participating. It turned out that the restaurants have reduced a total of about 2,400,000 sets of disposable tableware in the two phases of the Campaign. This proves that a small action could make a big difference.

And once again, Professor Sung reminded us, just like his students, to have a slight change in our mindset, could result in a huge difference. Hong Kong maybe a hectic metropolis, but we ourselves, do not need to have everything at top speed all the time, we could sometimes slow down a bit for some eco-friendlier alternative and produce less waste. It all comes down to our own values, virtue and views towards life. And he ensures, with slower pace, and better environment, we would feel more stable and satisfied mentally within.

Final Remarks

A lot has been happening in Hong Kong, Professor Sung is very aware of the problem and showed sympathy towards the young. He believes that youth development is a responsibility that the government cannot escape from. Nonetheless, he hopes young people can be more patient, to view things from a wider scope and looking into the future, and not to just look at the difficult present. Professor Sung also called for the support from the public, especially big corporates to provide more development opportunities (and higher wages) to our younger generation. He has faith in them, with the right soil, the innovative and academically-promising seedlings can definitely sprout and produce great crops.

Post script from Author: Passing the torch

During the interview with Professor Sung, he raised two role models Professor Chen-Ning Franklin Yang (First Chinese Nobel Prize winner) and The Honourable Jao Tsung-I GBM. He mentioned his admiration and appreciation of their values of Filial-piety, Patriotic of Professor Yang, and the decent romance and generosity of sharing knowledge of Professor Jao. I could literally feel that these men has moulded Professor Sung into who he is today, a decent, romantic, respectful, knowledgeable gentlemen, and he himself, spares no effort to pass these invaluable traits, to us, the young people.

After Thai boxing, NP and the new members enjoyed a decent breakfast together in a cozy environment. During the boxing and breakfast, all the participants proactively shared their JC life, and asked NP for his decade-long JC life as well. The atmosphere is warm and friendly.

Membership Conversion Enhancement Workshop

– To equip members with all-round people skills

Apart from recruiting new members to join JCIHK, the national membership affairs team also attaches great importance to membership conversion and retention. In other words, to transfer new members to ordinary members, as well as to retain them to grow in JC, are also essential.

In this regard, this year National Membership Development Commission initiated the "Membership Conversion Enhancement Workshop" on 29th May, the first-ever workshop in JCIHK on member conversion and retention skills. In the Workshop, Immediate Past President Jackal Ho (JCI Peninsula) and Immediate Past President Rosanna Wong (JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes), who are both "Diamond Networkers" in JCIHK, were invited to share their secret in membership conversion and retention skills. Their sharing was interactive, and also attracted participants to share their own success and difficulties in handling members. The Workshop was vividly conducted with inspiration for participants.

In membership affairs area, recruitment, conversion and retention are the 3 most important aspects and skills that we constantly strive for doing better. With better people skills, we hope that members' communication skills could be sharpened to facilitate their personal growth, as well as facilitate teamwork for organizing more impactful projects to society.

It was a great success with representatives from all 21 chapters coming together discussing various pressing matters and coming up with solutions in relative areas. Before the meeting, we have created a platform and sent out questionnaires to all chapters' area representatives, for everybody to voice out their opinions, and to raise awareness for further discussions. The Golden Past　The Glittery Present　A Gleaming Future

“The Golden Past, A Gleaming Future” is the core motto and aspiration of JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes in 2019, marking its Golden Jubilee celebratory milestone. Since its establishment in 1969, the female chapter has been dedicated to nurturing caring and daring female leaders and promoting fair and integrated communities through a wide spectrum of campaigns. While keeping the good, old practices, the team see the need to change. The new fresh look in shocking pink and green is the call-out to energetic young ladies who are looking for personal advancement and eager to contribute to the betterment of the society.

This is also the time for reunion and new breakthrough. The insightful overview of flagship projects done over the past 50 years is a fruitful discovery and reflection of what have been done in the past and now. It’s key to have creative solutions to tackle the pressing social issues and bring positive changes to the society, like translating the sustainable development goals into something easy for young children to understand and providing opportunities to empower women to make more headway in leadership and in business.

Together, we are building a ‘Glittery Present’. We inspire and motivate one another towards a better future.

[旅遊業減塑約章]

香港是旅遊之都，每年進出旅客多達數以千萬計，為香港帶來龐大的收益和就業機會，但同時亦難免產生大量即棄品，為環境帶來壓力，即使旅客有心支持環保，亦會因欠缺酒店環保措施等資料，而無從入手。

有見及此，浩洋青年商會在地球之友、香港城市大學澳大利亞伍倫貢書院支持下，在年初成立了全港首個「旅遊業減塑約章」，旨在提升提升酒店、業界以至香港的國際形象。當時進行的問卷調查顯示，超過8成半港人認為酒店認負上更多環保責任，同時有6成半港人同意，如果有客觀的第三方環保認證，會增加他們入住酒店的誘因。

問卷結果證實了約章可讓旅客選擇酒店時多一個參考要素，優先選擇綠色酒店。酒店為環保出一分力之餘，亦可提升吸引力，長遠推動業界提供更多環保措施。

首年約章共有10間酒店參加，並已在8月2日舉行頒獎禮，在此再一次感謝酒店業的參與。

Men's Mental Health Day 2019

Nowadays, we can easily find resources and news which are about children, elderly, teenager or female mental health. However, little attention has been paid to men. Is it because men have no emotional issues? Or their voices were unheard in the society?

Through conducting four roadshows, we found that most of the men were encountering different levels of stress from both the work and family. And there was a lack of support in helping them to deal with the emotional problems. In order to raise the public awareness of men's mental health, we launched the "Men's Mental Health Day 2019" on 15th Jun 2019, which was one day before Father's Day. We hoped that caring of men should not only take place once every year on Father's Day, but also on the Men's Mental Health Day organised by JCI Sha Tin.

Our world will be a better place with more love and care from the others.

JCI Lantau's April Monthly Fellowship Gathering

Sustainability through generations can be achieved by fully delegating and letting loose any restrain to let the next generation to succeed in managing the business. Mr. Jacky Poon, CEO of Wong Chun Chun Thai Restaurant, claimed himself as a second-generation business owner but not a wealthy one. He shared the view of his parents that they believed if they asked Jacky to take over their family business, it could hinder his career development with such a high educational background from overseas. In his sharing he saw himself as a blank piece of paper without any managing experience nor food and beverage industrial knowledge . He had led the business by being a keen observer and to make little changes at a time while maintaining the cohesion with the key employees.

The succeeding generational gap forum cum PMO ended with three new members joining JC Lantau. We are sure more and more new members will join our JCI family.

Finally, with greatest pleasure, our guest speaker, Mr. Jacky Poon, joined us as a prospective member of JCI Lantau. Let us all embrace the JCI journey together and to be enlightened on new things in life through participating in the JCI walk of life and keep changing the world together.
