Michael Au Yeung (JCI Sha Tin)

It's been more than one and a half years since Covid-19 began and the anti-pandemic-related social distancing and quarantine measures has put a constraint on the feasibility for any of our plans for travelling overseas, visiting relatives or friends, studying abroad or business trips. This is certainly not an ideal scenario for most of us and some even developed mental ill-health from this pandemic.

Mental Health Awareness is one of the three pillars under JCI RISE initiatives apart from Business Recovery and Workforce Empowerment. It is our pleasure to have the 2019 TOYP awardee Mr. Jeffrey Andrews to share his own story and his ways on bringing positive impacts to the people around him.

In this issue we are proud to have JCI Vice President William and JCI RISE committee member Senator David Luk to share with us their JC journeys and their views on the key values of becoming a great leader.

Let's keep the smile on our face and continue our effort to bring positive impacts to the community around us!

NATIONAL PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

JCI HONG KONG NATIONAL PRESIDENT
SENATOR WINNIE YEUNG

I still remember at around this time a year ago, we were working hard to prepare for the Exchange Forum 2021. A year is gone in the blink of an eye and here we are, feeling accomplished, enjoying some relatively relaxed days after major events like ASPAC in August, National Convention in September, TOYP Results Announcement Press Conference in October and we all look forward to the World Congress in November. What's more exciting is that JCI Hong Kong would be hosting the Word Congress in 2022! The bidding team came up with great plans and proposals in 3 months' time and we couldn't wait to welcome everyone to Hong Kong!

The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort, but where he stands at times of challenge. Together, we are passing through a period of tests due to the pandemic since last year. It is a test of our determination, courage, wisdom and perseverance and I am very proud of my Team which has demonstrated all the above precious qualities.

More importantly, our 21 Local Chapters have done an amazing job in this quarter. Hundreds of projects and events that would create positive change have been launched successfully and taking this opportunity, I'd like to congratulate you all for the achievements you've made so far!

I believe the 2022 Teams are doing a lot of preparatory work now just like us last year. Let us empower them with our experience and together, we, the empowered leaders, will make great things happen!

INTERVIEW WITH JCI VICE PRESIDENT

SENATOR PHENG KOUCH (WILLIAM)

Written by Michael Au-Yeung, Editor-in-Chief

M: How do you spend your leisure time?

W: I like to bring my kids around. Before we had our travel plan during holiday but since the pandemic we usually stay indoor. We do go outdoor but try to limit to places not so crowded like farms, resorts or hiking. We have to do some exercise to keep our body and mind to be healthy and active.

M: As I know you are a busy man, how do you balance your work & life?

W: This is always a difficult question to answer. Sometimes we do have to put down our priorities. Before the pandemic, I went for quite a lot of JCI trips when I was the National President and the Conference Director. As the National President back in 2015, I invested much time in local and international events. That was really challenging as I barely had time with my family and business. To adapt to the situation, in business I set up different teams and delegate my work to the suitable staffs so that the company still could function without my presence. This is something I learned in JCI I can say.

During this COVID-19 time, we were faced with risks such as lockdown in the city and infections in the office. Thus since very early in this pandemic, we had set up our pandemic readiness plan for example we had two offices and divided our teams in two so one team would back up the other.

The good thing about this pandemic is that more and more meetings are turned online so I can attend the virtual meeting at home and can have more time with my family.

Doing voluntary work with company staff

Waiting for cargos loading with staff

M: What characteristics do you think a good leader shall have and why?

W: I think there are 3 important attributes: Integrity, loyalty and the ability to delegate. But talking about the ability to delegate, a leader can delegate the tasks to the staffs but we have to make sure that the leader will bear the responsibility rather than the staff and this is very important. Imagine a case when a staff did something that upset the client and the leader cannot just say that happened because of my staff's negligence.

Furthermore, in leadership a good leader will try to earn the respect from his followers. Nowadays it is not possible to force someone to do something. Thus if you earn the respect and get some common grounds with your fellow colleagues, it will be easier for your execution of your plan. How to earn the respect depends on how you treat or serve your people indeed so you will have to be very thoughtful on this.

2015 JCI Public Speaking Championship went to JCI Cambodia

M: Amid this pandemic, some people may face unemployment, while others may develop some mental health issues. How would you encourage young people to have a positive mindset?

W: This pandemic does not only bring us all bad things. Before the pandemic some people may be earning some easy money and maybe they have been buying a lot of unnecessary stuffs. Now is a time for them to think what is the necessity they really have to spend money on. One more important point is that we are having more time to take care of our health. We can have more time to spend on exercise or family gathering. I started cooking at home for my family since the pandemic began and I found great joy in that. I even did online courses with friends that we did not do before. One good thing is that you can have self-reflection time during the work-from-home period.

As 2015 National President, VP William had great memory to be part of the JCI 100th Anniversary.

M: Any more words you would like to tell JCIHK members?

W: I am very proud to be assigned to take care of JCI Hong Kong. What I like about members of JCI Hong Kong is that they are not sitting back, rather they are coming together to help each other especially JCI Hong Kong is going to host the World Congress in 2022. Also we notice there is membership growth in JCI Hong Kong and this is a proof that the pandemic did not tear you guys apart, but rather it made you guys stronger.

Just like our slogan "Empowered leaders empower leaders". In leadership there are many things we can talk about like what are the differences between "good" and "great" leaders. "Good" leaders will build more leaders to follow their path but "great" leaders can built leaders that can be better than they are. So in whatever position you are, you have to have faith in your team and to built them to be better than where you are at. If you manage to do so then it is showing your success.

A CONVERSATION WITH EMPOWERED LEADER

"A leader is someone who makes an impact, brings along positive influences and inspires others."

Written by Michael Au-Yeung, Editor-in-Chief

M: Why PP Senator David joined JCI?

D: Mainly for 2 reasons. Before 2015, I was working in a law firm and most of my close friends were in the legal industry. I tried to expand my horizon and know more people in various background. There was one occasion that I talked to one of JCI Island's Past Presidents and was invited by him to attend a MFG to learn more about this organization. I found out that JCI members came from different background and I was sure joining JCI would expand my horizons.

The second reason was impressed by projects. Although I did volunteer works for some NGOs, I found out that JCI projects were impressive and sustainable. I was truly inspired by the last value of JCI Creed, 'that service to humanity is the best work of life', and I was keen to learn how to do impactful projects to benefit the community.

M: How does PP Senator David manage your time amongst your roles in JCI, your job, other NGOs and your personal life? And how do you relieve stress and pressure?

D: I am not sure I managed my time well honestly. My daily job is busy but luckily only busy during normal office hours on Mondays to Fridays. For me, it has always been a challenge to squeeze time amongst JCI, my job, other NGOs and my personal life. There was no trick on me as I simply rank the tasks according to priority/deadline.

It is worth highlighting that under the COVID-19 pandemic people are more used to conduct meetings online. If one can fully utilize the power of the technology and plan meetings well in advance, he/she can become more efficient on time management.

In my leisure time I like watching NBA games and do some outdoor activities. You may not believe but sometimes I find watching news can relieve my pressure too!

M: Are there any unforgettable memories during your journey in JCI so far?

D: It was my honour to serve JCI Hong Kong for 3 consecutive years. During this period, I learnt a lot and improved myself as an individual.

To me, COVID-19 pandemic is one of the unforgettable memories. When I was the National Executive Vice President last year, I, like other people, was of the impression that this pandemic would not last long and all those planned activities could still go ahead in a few months' time.

However, as facts speak for itself, COVID-19 pandemic still affect our lives and international travel. Anti-pandemic measures such as social distancing measures and mandatory quarantine on travel made the team very hard to carry out the projects as planned. Areas like International Affairs and Membership Affairs were seriously affected but all thanks to my team members' capability, unity and flexibility, we finally managed to change our strategy and moved our projects online such as "Hello JC".

M: As a committee member in JCI RISE this year, what did you observe during the service so far?

D: JCI reacted to this COVID-19 pandemic by introducing JCI RISE. I like this new initiative very much as it provides the framework on how JCI members can unite the sectors to fight against COVID-19. From my observation, under this pandemic, many NOMs shared similar difficulties on reaching out to members and carrying out projects due to lockdowns and social distancing measures. Fortunately, Hong Kong's pandemic continues to slow down in recent months and JCI Hong Kong members are very hard-working to do projects. From my observation, there are more than 40 projects related to JCI RISE initiatives in Hong Kong which is a very good achievement.

JCI RISE has 3 pillars, namely: Business Recovery, Workforce Empowerment, and Mental Health Awareness. One interesting finding I would like to share is that, when we saw the global unemployment rate hit high at the beginning of the year, one may think that local chapters were keen on doing projects focusing on Business Recovery or Workforce Empowerment. However, according to the data, projects related to Mental Health Awareness are in fact the most common type of JCI RISE initiative members are doing. We even noticed that some chapters in other countries organized projects for singing!

I would like to take this opportunity to encourage local chapters to consider putting JCI RISE initiatives into their plan of actions in the coming year.

M: Some says that, the letter "I" in "JCI" (stands for "International") is the most important attribute in this organization. How do you comment on this statement?

D: I agree that "International" is a very important element for JCI. JCI has its strong presence in more than 120 countries/regions and spreads in 4 areas. International Affairs therefore is one of the 4 Areas of Opportunity that allow members to build overseas network and exchange ideas. Members should ride on this platform and explore this opportunity to expand their horizons.

M: Last Words...anything you would like to say to our members?

D: I strongly encouraged all JCI members to commit in this organization. JCI is a platform that brings a lot of unforgettable experience to everyone and help you transform to a better person. Also, this organization is full of talents with different capabilities and you are easy to find your models here.

SPEAK UP AND TALK ABOUT MENTAL HEALTH

We have Mr. Jeffrey Alterin, ANDREWS,
The city's first registered Hong Kong-born Indian social worker

Written by Michael Au-Yeung, Editor- in- Chief

Once we stepped through the gate of Chungking Mansions – a well-known complex and gathering place for the ethnic minorities in Hong Kong, a few Indians approached and invited us to try out their curry restaurants. We told them we were almost late for an interview with Jeffrey Andrews, an Indian social worker. Apparently, a stand-out figure in the community. They knew who we were talking about and gave us the directions to his office right away.

Jeffrey was already waiting for us when we arrived at his office. After settling down, Jeffrey began telling his story. "I was born in a traditional Indian family in Hong Kong as the 3rd generation. As an ethnic minority, we did not have a chance to receive education in the same classroom with the locals." Jeffrey was not an academic person and he dropped out from school in his teens. He began hanging out with some gangster friends and he was caught for a theft not long after. At the police station, he tried to make calls and asked for help. However almost all of Jeffrey's old friends were not willing to give a hand except Fermi Wong, a social worker who had long been trying to approach Jeffrey, but every time, he gave her the cold shoulder.

“Her kind act was life-changing for me.” Jeffrey said she picked up his call from the police station at 4 in the morning and she came the very same night to help with the procedure of bail. She made countless calls to asked for petition letters. Knowing that some of his friends were still in jail at that time, Jeffrey knew this would be the only chance for him to reform. That day onwards, Jeffrey vowed never to let his loved one worry about him anymore. He would like his experience to become a lighthouse to guide those ethnic minorities not to take a wrong path as he did and that was why he strived to be a social worker afterwards.

To become a social worker in Hong Kong, one must speak and write fluently in Chinese. However, Jeffrey could only speak Chinese. Fermi, once again, helped him and liaised with some schools before she succeeded in persuading one to waive the Chinese writing prerequisite for the first time ever in Hong Kong’s history. After 4 years of study and internship, Jeffrey managed to get his certificate in social worker at last.

Jeffrey has been focusing on helping the ethnic minorities and refugees since then. COVID-19 has brought a challenging time to them. In early 2020 when the pandemic just began, there was a wave of misinformation spreading in their community. “At that time, some people thought that curry powder could cure COVID-19!” exclaimed Jeffrey. Some faced difficulties in learning the latest epidemic measures thus they preferred staying at home to avoid being caught and fined. Others may have lost their jobs and worried that going out means spending money. What’s worse, all of these could easily lead to mental health issues.

One of Jeffrey’s clients, who became jobless during the pandemic, chose to hide himself at home in which the toilet was dilapidated and bed buds made him suffered. Jeffrey assisted to look for a new home and a new, clean bed. Despite of this, Jeffrey thought he should do more to help his clients. “By counselling, you have to give them a purpose.” Jeffrey invited his client to contribute his effort to others in need and now his client has become one of the staff in Jeffrey’s centre.

"Don't teach a man to take a fish, you need to teach the man how to fish." This old saying represents the philosophy behind Jeffrey, how he empowers his clients and deals with some of their mental health issues too. Jeffrey brought us to a conference room where a group of people was having Zoom meeting. "The one in front of us is Professor Gordon Matthews, one of our volunteers here and he regularly hosts online debate for the refugees. Some of the refugees only spoke broken English when they first came here." Teaching them to speak English better connect them to the community.

"We are also grateful to have community partnerships with a number of NGOs." At the beginning of the pandemic, we partnered with another NGO to distribute masks, PPEs, dining coupons, etc. Recently, a career workshop was co-hosted with JCI for the refugees to look for opportunities in the job markets. "Most participants are inexperienced and some of them attended the mock interview with their CVs in handwriting and came with their slippers on!" Jeffrey described. "After a series of consultation and effort to link up with the corporates, out of our expectation, 4 participants got a job offer finally!"

When asked about how to tackle the mental health issues associated with COVID-19, Jeffrey said the most important thing is to encourage people to speak up and talk about mental health. Instead of a top-down approach, Jeffrey preferred to take on his own initiative from bottomup. "Since COVID time, we organised Coffee Night and Quarantine Chat for our clients. When we talk about mental health, it is like blowing up a balloon and you need to relax a little bit when pressure is too high otherwise the balloon will just burst." The "Coffee Night" and "Quarantine Chat" were organised for their centre staff and clients to meet up either face-toface or online, to share about some latest updates for their lives, laughter, or tears. Through these events, the participants could show support to one another and in turn help building up the positive energy and lowering the risk of mental health issues among them.

There is still no sight of when the pandemic will end. Here in Hong Kong, there maybe people being laid off and forced to look for another job; there maybe travel lovers being forced to stay in Hong Kong during holiday. But as a Hong Konger living here for almost 4 decades, Jeffrey witnessed a lot of ups-and-downs. Resembling our JCI RISE initiative, Jeffrey thinks that everyone in Hong Kong will just rise and stand up again soon, as long as everyone is out supporting one another, holding hands as we walk past obstacles over obstacles again.

NATIONAL INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Asia and Pacific Conference (ASPAC)

An opening party with nearly 100 delegates to feel the vibe of ASPAC with Taiwan food and drinks.

From 19 to 22 August, the first-ever online JCI Asia and Pacific Conference (ASPAC)s was held on the JCI Virtual Community Platform, a brand-new platform introduced by JCI worldwide.

The 4-day conference featured a range of trainings, talks, general assemblies and national parties. Despite the pandemic, our on-to ASPAC team led by Billy Kwong, Michael Cheung, Tiger Leung and Jason Chan have brought the conference to another level with a hybrid opening watching party, a special Hong Kong delegate kit and a creative yoga session for 305 Hong Kong delegates.

The conference also featured 3 trainings from Hong Kong which focused on future skills such as live streaming and poster design, public speaking and debating championship. We would like to express our sincere thanks to all trainers and contestants representing JCI Hong Kong.

A hybrid morning Yoga with National President Senator Winnie Yeung and JCI members from Asia and the Pacific.

JCI Hong Kong ranked the 4th largest NOM delegate by registration in JCI ASPAC Taichung this year. Here are feedbacks from our on-to ASPAC team who are firsttimers of ASPAC as well.

Our team mainly arranged two physical events which are "Opening Ceremony" and "Yoga Morning with NP" for our fellow members to be engaged together. We hope all participants had a great time.

Besides, it was my first time to take part in ASPAC. Although we cannot fly to Taiwan this time, we can still have a taste of Taiwanese culture via "Opening Ceremony" and "Hong Kong Night". As I quite love Taiwan, I was happy to taste the Taiwanese food even in Hong Kong. I would like to thank all the COC of ASPAC for their nonstop efforts.

Jason Chan (JCI City)

It is the first time for me to be OC of a NOM Project and I am very excited to work on a large event. Under COVID-19, there were too many uncertainties and consideration when we held a large event. I am proud that our team can successfully complete this project. Learning how to help each other in large projects and be friends with other LOM members are my large greatest takeaway.

Michael Cheung (JCI Tsuen Wan)

We cannot do a lot of outdoor events or fly to Taiwan this year due to COVID-19 but it didn't stop our passion and fire for this project. Opening Ceremony and Yoga Morning with NP plus Hong Kong Night were extremely fun because I saw different JCI members enjoyed all those events immensely. It was the biggest success for me and I was so satisfied because I love sharing happiness.

Tiger Leung (JCI Island)

2021 Asia and Pacific Conference (ASPAC) – Hong Kong Night

''In the belief of internationalism and value of JCI Hong Kong, right from the election in 2020, the National IA team has believed that there's no better timing than 2021 for JCI Hong Kong to be the gateway of Hong Kong culture and the global community as a leading international youth organization.'' (NEVP Senator Naomi Chan)

On 21 August, there came one of the climaxes of ASPAC for all Hong Kong and overseas delegates, the first-ever hybrid Hong Kong Night attended by over 13 cities and countries in Asia and Europe.

This year, positioned to showcase Hong Kong culture and brands under the Hello World! initiative, JCI Hong Kong entered into strategic partnership with Hong Kong Tourism Board, and engaged renowned mixologist Victoria Chow and sponsors such as local brands and shopping mall K11 Musea to highlight the vibe, food and culture of Hong Kong.

The 2 hour event was packed with fun-filled activities including a HK-themed cocktail demonstration and a micro film showcasing youth initiatives to help those in need during the pandemic, the gorgeous Victoria Harbour and the iconic Ding Ding tram under the theme ''One Sky One World''. The event also featured a song written by talented JCI Hong Kong members to cheer our delegates up despite the lockdown.

The concerted effort and strategy of entire National IA team paid off when IA buddies recruited earlier this year were engaged to support the live chat and on-site operations, and new connections such as JCI Germany attended our event.

''Amid Covid-19, international visits had been halted. We had been struggling in the beginning that how we could show the beauty of Hong Kong to the world under the pandemic situation. We kept modifying our plan along with the news and finally organized a hybrid Hong Kong Night to maximize participation with a global focus. There was a lot of work involved in this innovative event—— these cannot happen without everyone's contribution as not only the OC team, but many JCI Hong Kong members who gave suggestions to this project. Partnership is another important element in this project, there were key sponsorships and suggesting organizations in making this happen. There are many innovative elements that contributed to this event which cannot happen without all inputs from our diverse and international community. Amid the current challenge of COVID-19, this demonstrated our cohesive group of resourceful JCI network that stood in solidarity in making this event happen, and a great success. Not only did we demonstrate that we could make the impossible possible, it also showed that everyone in our JCI network, whether you are a prospective member, experienced member or friends and allies, we are in this together and we can make the impossible possible despite all challenges. I hope everyone participating in Hong Kong Night would have got inspired in some ways.''

Chairman of
2021 ASPAC Hong Kong Night
Hob Lau

''Affected by the sudden COVID-19, life has become restricted, and we cannot fly to our destination as freely as we used to. When I know this year I got the opportunity to be the organizing committee in 2021 Hong Kong Night, I feel so nervous and expectant. This project was only intended to be an online program from the beginning and became a hybrid program finally, which successfully connected the world and made all participants enjoy a wonderful night.

Although Hong Kong Night is such a big show, we only have limited manpower and resources, and every step is full of challenges. In addition to finding ways to continuously expand the existing resources, we also got the help of many JC members to enrich the content of the program and make it successfully completed.

My greatest takeaways after completing this project are event management skills, communication skills, friendship and teamwork. This project taught me that teamwork is important, everybody has individual strengths but each of us are limited in some way. Teamwork makes dream work, we make impossible to possible.

Hope everyone enjoyed this meaningful 2021 Hong Kong Night program and we believe we can fly again soon.''

OC Marcella Ho

COVID-19 has made us so close and yet so far with the international community but there came an opportunity to create new projects in JCI- the first hybrid Hong Kong Night.

Thank you Chairman Hob Lau to lead this project. We know that he has tried to find additional resources to support this programme. I also feel so happy work with OC team with Polly and Marcella. Special thanks to NEVP Naomi, NVP Jackie, NIAD Zacharias and NIAO Annalia to technical support for this programme.

This project has sharpened my skill of conducting an online program including micro film script creation and communication with different stakeholders. I also have learnt how to control cost under limited resource for event management. I hope that I can use this skill for another JC event and my work.

OC Matthew Lee

Coming together is a beginning, staying together is progress, and working together is a success. It well concludes our teamwork through these months, all the ups and downs, laughter and sweat. It's all worth it.

Thanks Chairman Hob Lau for his devotion and persistence. We are all inspired by his passion and thus kept working hard together day by day. I especially enjoyed the teamwork with other OC members. We all have learnt much from each other, which is also the meaning of participating in such a large-scale JCI project. This project has extended my event management and effective communication skills, I have learnt how to support the team under limited human resource. What a meaningful and joyful journey!

The jogging paid off with an awesome view of a beautiful rainbow well above Hong Kong's iconic skyline. Special thanks to National President Candidate Senator Karen Yeung's arrangement of a dinner gathering to increase the bonding.

The theme of President Academy 2021 was Olympic Games. Olympics has been a global event with over 100 years of history, with the passing of torch that demonstrates a lineage of inheritance of universal ideals. The President Academy is also an inheritance of knowledge and value from one generation of leaders to another. Olympics is an occasion in which the world comes to compete, feel inspired, and be together. With the teamwork of JCI Hong Kong from 2021 to 2022, we will overcome any challenges and create positive change in the ever-changing world! Our future leaders are ready now!

Flagship Project - Children's Play Right (CPR)

As the COVID-19 epidemic has been subsiding, parents prefer their children to stay home with much less outdoor activities. So CPR 2021 has grabbed this chance to hold an online competition [Make your own game] which aims to encourage parents to create their own games together with the children! Meanwhile JCI TW and SCRAP (香港善導會) has embedded research on playtime and child development in HK. Overall, research suggests that adults need to be sensitive to the child's needs in the moment, flexible in choosing the way they intervene, and willing to follow the child's lead. shows good results and some educational insight! Last but not least, CPR also coped with BNI to produce a theme song 讓孩子遊玩 to promote the children's play right to the public! Please check out our FaceBook to know more!

JCI LANTAU

Addressing societal issues has become a topic of common interest for JCIHK. With Hong Kong striving to achieve carbon neutrality by 2050, one of JCI Lantau's supporting projects – "UNI Green" proposing solutions hoping to help save the planet. The project also admitted to Design Incubation Programme (DIP) under Hong Kong Design Centre and awarded the PolyU Microfund!

"UNI Green" is a pioneer program to construct an ecosystem for school & group uniforms with an aim to combat climate change. According to the research, production of uniforms for HK students each year emitted CO2 equivalent to a car travelling 1,200 times around the Earth and wasted 3 years of drinking water for all people in HK. The team created an ecosystem of uniform and brings educational values to the students, from recycle, upcycle and education program.
